Shark Space and Gamepad in Black Shark 2 Pro Hello, after we introduced some gaming smartphones like BlackShark 2 Pro. What many people are interested in is probably not the story of Shark Space. Today, I would like to bring this part to talk to each other again. For Shark Space, many people may wonder what it is. It is a system that makes gamers wow Because this is the part that will make the gameplay on your smartphone more smooth because Shark Space can customize the gameplay of a variety. Suitable for people who love to play games very much. The launch of Shark Space is quite cool. And has features that are different from other smartphones You will notice that the area on the right side of the smartphone Above the screen unlock button There will be another button. Which you can launch Shark Space via this button. And if disabled Can also be closed via this buttonShark Space and GamepadLet's take a look at the Shark Space inside. I must say that this looks wow. There shouldn't be any smartphone model that cares about Catagory games like this before. In Shark Space, there will be Game Studio that is used to customize gameplay. Let's try to see what we can customize. Shark Space and GamepadThe GamePad is part of the GamePad configuration, which I would like to request separately to explain in the Joy section.Master Touch. This system can detect pressure on the screen. Which will be divided into the left side of the screen and the right side of the screen, in which some games will use the function of pressure levels added as wellWi-Fi. Use Wi-Fi or switch WiFi selection.notify Disables notifications during gameplay.NoKeypad Disables KeyPadPerformance. Check the potential of the machine during use.SharkTime Video recording while in Shake Space mode.DashBoard check frame rateSet SIM usage status 4GNoIncall turns off calling during the game.HangUp breaks the game screen, with the game still being used. Setting can be adjusted such as FPSoptimization, sound balance adjustment in the game Or brightness controlFrom the video above it is a guarantee that the Black Shark 2 Pro is very effective in playing games. I tried adjusting the RoV game settings to the highest quality. And test, play It appears that it can be played smoothly. Without stumbling at allRead More: Call Of Duty Modern Warfare Optimized PC Performance Let's take a look at the GamePad that we have received. This GamePad looks from the design. Having said that, it makes it really worth using. To touch the fingers very well If you think that the controls are as stiff as the older joysticks You are wrong. Smartphones are cool. The GamePad has been cool. Each Boxset will have a different GamePad. For example, we have only got one GamePad.Shark Space and GamepadFor the GamePad, you can only buy a smartphone and then buy the GamePad separately. Or to buy in a Boxset that comes with two GamePads. Regardless, the GamePad itself can be attached to the smartphone. Only when the smartphone has to put on the case first Importantly, this GamePad also needs to charge the battery as well. How to install game Pad (Shark Space and Gamepad) Black shark (Shark Space and Gamepad)When using Shark Space and Gamepad for the first time, you are not able to connect. You must first connect to the GamePad (after the first connection The device will remember automatically.) You can set up the device connection for the first time through Shark Space.Shark Space and GamepadOnce the GamePad is installed on a smartphone. You can customize the operation as conveniently as well. You can adjust the position of the control buttons on the screen. Or if advanced customization can be adjusted in terms of game sensitivity, mouse, touch keyboard and basic operating systemsHow was it for anyone wishing to be the owner of the Black Shark 2 Pro, it should be impressive in both the Shark Space and the GamePad that has it. black shark, black shark 2, black shark 2 camera, black shark 2 gamepad, black shark 2 hands on, black shark 2 pro, black shark 2 pubg, black shark 2 pubg mobile gameplay, black shark 2 review, black shark 2 unboxing, black shark gamepad 2.0, black shark gaming phone, black shark helo, black shark helo, black shark phone. Featured, Shark, shark space, xiaomi black shark, xiaomi black shark 2 review, xiaomi black shark review The Black Shark 5 Pro runs JOYUI 13 out of the box, which is based on MIUI 13 and runs on top of the latest Android 12. Like the Poco launcher, which is ever so slightly altered MIUI for Poco phones, JoyUI is an adapted version for Black Shark phones. From what we gathered, only a couple of themes, wallpapers, and gaming-related features set it apart from the original MIUI. The home screen, lock screen, app drawer and recent apps are all pretty familiar and generally lifted from MIUI. The app drawer is set as a default option on the Black Shark phones instead of the simplified home screen arrangement. The notification shade and quick toggles are extensively customizable. Notification and control center settings Swiping down from the home screen near the left edge of the display will bring down the notification cards and stacks. This, in turn, can be customized further by switching over to MIUI-style notification cards instead of the default Android ones. Swiping near the right edge will bring down the so-called Control Center - four highlighted toggles for the Wi-Fi, Bluetooth, cellular and flashlight, while the rest are the usual toggles that can be rearranged. There's the brightness slider too. The highlighted toggles have a small triangle icon in the lower-right corner. Tapping on it will show a context menu allowing you to manage your connections on the fly without having to open up the settings menu. Old notification and quick toggles • New notification and control center interface Another highly customizable feature is the always-on display. There are tons of clocks, animations and even a customizable theme for the always-on panel. The behavior of the always-on is also adjustable - scheduling, raise-to-wake, double-tap-to-wake. Always-on display and lock screen settings Speaking of the display, on top of the usual options, you get a Sunlight mode that boosts the brightness even further when the brightness control is set to manual mode. Quite useful for people who do not like automatic adjustment. The Anti-flicker mode also prevents the screen from flickering at lower brightness levels. Display settings Unlike the rest of Android phones, including the other MIUI branches, the battery menu is tucked away in the Performance manager section. In addition to the standard Battery menu, you have a Process manager, Network assistant and Endurance optimization assistant at your disposal. The names of the features are pretty self-explanatory, but they also give you some nerd stats such as CPU and RAM usage in real-time, network connection quality and detailed battery usage stats. Performance and power management menus Xiaomi has rearranged these menus slightly since the last time we checked, and the available charging modes are now notably easier to find. There are two of them. Speed flash filling gives you the maximum 120W peak charging mode, which can make the phone a bit toasty. Constant temperature charging lowers the charging cap a bit. More important still, it learns from your charging habits to preserve battery health in the long run. After all, you don't really need those 120W pumping juice into the battery if you are doing overnight charging. Supposedly, it would stop charging at some point and wait until the last few minutes before you wake up to fill up the remaining battery charge. The one-handed mode is a mixed bag since the gesture requires swiping across the navigation buttons to activate it, and that works okay only if you are not using full-screen gestures. The Special features menu holds a couple of other neat tricks like lighting effects for incoming calls (just like edge lighting on other phones) and lighting effects for music playback. Switching off the screen while playing something on your phone will show those lighting effects. Unlike last year's model, the Black Shark 5 Pro supposedly has a dedicated RGB bit on the back panel, which should be handling the light effects. For some reason, however, we never actually managed to make it shine on our review unit. Special features Lastly, we have the so-called Magic window. This feature seems to be getting pretty popular on custom UIs and what it does is offer quick access to certain apps or tasks just by sliding out a small panel over other apps or menus. You can move it around the edges to your liking. Gaming features and physical shoulder triggers Like its predecessors, the Black Shark 5 Pro has a handful of gaming-specific software features to set it apart from your regular Xiaomi or Poco phones. The so-called Shark Space is in the center of it all. There's no dedicated physical button to start the Shark Space, so you have to either open the app itself or press and hold both shoulder triggers. The app allows you to manage your game collection, sync your accessories to the handset and set global settings such as locking the brightness level, toggling on the mistouch prevention feature, rejecting an incoming call automatically, muting notifications, etc. Shark Space Beyond that, there is the actual in-game overlay which is called Game assistant and is summoned by swiping from the corners of the display. Enabling or disabling some of the corner gestures in landscape and portrait mode is also possible. Game assistant overlay In the Game assistant, you'll find all sorts of useful things, from performance stats to all kinds of anti-interruption toggles, macros and a toggle for the nifty bypass charging mode, which simply powers the phone from your charger without putting strain on the battery. Bullet notifications are one of the more unique features of the phone. They allow you to read notifications while in-game. Those bullet notifications can be customizable as well - position, speed, style, opacity, and the number of allowed lines. Bullet notifications In case you are in a game with a buddy, using the loudspeakers can sometimes interfere with the call quality, meaning you won't be able to hear the other side. The Game voice mono feature aims to solve this issue by temporarily disabling the top speaker so you can hear your friend's voice clearly. Pop-up shoulder buttons We already mentioned that the pop-up shoulder buttons are one of the Black Shark 5 Pro highlights. In fact, they have become somewhat of a mainstay within the Black Shark family. While competitors go for capacitive controls, which have their advantages, physical buttons will always win out in our book when it comes to gaming. They provide better tactile feedback, control and possibly, a faster response time. But the triggers are useful outside of gaming too. You can assign different tasks to each trigger - the bottom one, for example, launches the elusive one-handed mode by default. You can even set them up to work with the screen off. Pop-up trigger settings Unsurprisingly, the Black Shark 5 Pro also features an extensive control mapping software layer. Beyond the obvious steps of mapping the pop-up triggers to an on-screen control, the system also supports the mapping of motion gestures to on-screen actions. Also making a return - Magic Press, which allows you to set a custom on-screen button pressure threshold from seven different levels. Xiaomi markets this interesting feature as a way to get "precise movement" in some games. We can see how that can be a thing, but we can also see ourselves using this feature mostly to prevent accidental touches and inputs. Haptics also feel great on the Black Shark 5 Pro, and along with the physical triggers, the large dedicated speakers, and the slew of software features, the excellent haptics here round off what is an already excellent gaming experience.
