

I'm not robot

Amene Fujimiya, caught a cold after lending his umbrella to Mahiru Shiina, the "Angel" of his school, who is more than just a pretty face. She turns out to be a force to be reckoned with as she helps Mahiru recover from his illness, taking it upon herself to clean up his messy apartment and cook for him. The anime "Otonari no Tenshi-sama ni Itsuwanika Dame Ningen ni Sareteita Ken" follows the unlikely duo as Mahiru tends to Amene's various needs. It seems like she can do anything, but with there be a challenge that pushes her to her limits? Some viewers are already drawn into this heartwarming story, comparing it to other popular new series like "Shikimori no Na, Just a Cutie". They appreciate how Mahiru's down-to-earth nature is revealed as she takes charge of Amane's life. However, not everyone is convinced that the show will live up to its potential. Some are worried that it might devolve into a maid service anime, where Mahiru does all the work and Amane reaps the benefits without putting in any effort. Only time will tell if this unlikely duo can make their unusual arrangement work. What really got under my skin was the portrayal of Mister Hot Stuff, Mr Moody Eyes, who thinks he's some kind of outcast just because half the girls in his class have a crush on him. It's like they're expecting us to believe that this popular guy would be lonely and overlooked, but we never get any explanation for why he feels so downgraded. His apartment isn't exactly a dive, either - it looks like he's got some decent cash coming in somewhere. I was waiting for them to show us how he came to feel so inferior, but they just left it hanging. Usually, there'd be some girl confessing her love to him every month or so, but not here. And what really bugged me is that we didn't get any scenes of other guys being all over Angel-sama, making it believable that she's attracted to the one guy who doesn't have a thing for her. Nope, he just sits in the corner, being mature and not mistaking nice gestures from girls as romantic interest - how original. And let's be real, we barely got any development of his personality at all. It's like they're relying on him being a slob to make him reliable or something. Mahiru has a rather complicated relationship with her birthday celebrations, which she prefers not to discuss with others due to some unknown reason. Amane's knowledge of her birthday is solely because he found her school ID. On the other hand, Amane's situation is more straightforward - if he doesn't excel academically, he'll be forced to move back home. The budding romance between Mahiru and Amane seems pleasant, with Mahiru displaying a down-to-earth personality that contrasts with how others perceive her at school. The author finds the characters' interactions engaging, particularly their banter. However, there are some inconsistencies in the story's progression - for instance, how the two neighbors haven't interacted despite living next door to each other. The animation style and tone somewhat remind one of a similar show from previous seasons. Some viewers have pointed out that the show borrows elements from more popular series, such as Highrise. The relationship between Mahiru and Amane is progressing at a steady pace, but it's yet to reach a compelling level. Their interactions are becoming slightly spiky, which is keeping some viewers engaged. However, there are criticisms about the show's lack of originality and its reliance on overused tropes. The animation and direction have also been criticized for being subpar. In episode 3, Amane's mother visits and uncovers the truth about Mahiru and Amane's relationship status. She takes some creative liberties with the situation, but her visit is a pivotal moment in the series. As Christmas Eve approaches, Itsuki and Chitose plan to host a party that will bring together various characters from the show. Itsuki and Chitose meet the real Mahiru, not her angel persona. This development creates an interesting dynamic as the two boys interact with their new neighbor. HOOfan 1 questioned whether Mahiru was his step-mother due to her age and behavior towards him. Amane's mother appears to be very invested in her relationship with him, much like a biological mother would be. The design of her character bears resemblance to Chi, but with less cuteness. She seems proud of Amane, suggesting a strong bond between them. HOOfan 1 also noted that Mahiru appears willing to accept Amane as her future partner. As the cat's out of the bag is revealed, Itsuki and Chitose get to know the real Mahiru, who surprisingly forms a connection with Chitose. They play together at Amane's apartment and exchange gifts. When Mahiru falls ill, Amane takes care of her, showing his responsibility towards her. With time, it is clear that Amane and Mahiru will eventually become a couple, despite Amane initially denying any romantic involvement. She is living in his room to recover. The couple has made significant progress, but their relationship status remains unclear, as Amane insists they are not a pair. Mahiru was subtle in her feelings towards Amane during a recent conversation. Is she already engaged to someone else? Does she have an "old movie disease," where death leads to the continuation of the story? If so, it would explain why Chitose might discover them together soon. In Episode 5, Mahiru's mother visited, prompting her father's arrival for New Year's. The pair visited a shrine with Mahiru, holding hands to prevent separation in the crowd, sparking gossip among their classmates. Only Itsuki and Chitose were aware of Amane's presence. Amane has fortunate parents who accept him as Mahiru's partner. The next episode will be Valentine's Day. The family appears to be young, with Mahiru mistaking her father for a brother. They often refer to each other by name in front of their son, which is unusual given their age. Despite being practically married, they face an unspecified reason for Mahiru not having a boyfriend. Runc commented that the show's lack of comedic elements makes it a love comedy without distractions. They are on the verge of discovering a contrived plot reason for Mahiru's unavailability in romantic relationships. Mahiru's character design bears resemblance to another show, possibly Pet of Sakurasou, but with distinct facial features. The series' tone is expected to increase in drama level. Tom Watzskeleton mentioned that Mahiru's character design is reminiscent of Shiina from Pet of Sakurasou, albeit with rounder facial features. He agrees that the show requires tension and now has arrived at a crucial point. Given article text here "who is the captain of the track team and is quite popular with the girls." Amane returns a favor to his crush on White Day by giving her a bracelet, revealing their growing relationship. This gesture showcases Amane's kind and generous nature. As the story progresses, It'suki and Chitose visit, followed by Mahiru's mother Sayo, who had previously been meant to Mahiru. The reason for this animosity is revealed: Mahiru's parents never loved or wanted children, instead using her as a means to secure their family business. This explains why Mahiru dedicated herself to studying and training. Amane's parents, on the other hand, want to accept him into their family. Their love and support are a stark contrast to Mahiru's upbringing. The author questions whether corporate cooperation still relies on family marriages in Japan, or if it's just an anime trope. They also criticize the main character's treatment of his girlfriend, suggesting she should be more open-minded about her relationship. Furthermore, the show is described as one of the lowest-stakes rom-coms ever seen, with its protagonist turning into a generic "always there for you" character. The art and direction are deemed unimpressive. College life doesn't make sense when considering Amane and Mahiru's marriage as a business decision. It seems like they could've easily used the "they only had a kid out of obligation, but never really wanted one so pawned me off on the housekeeper" plot instead of the convoluted reasoning here. Don't drive a car when you're dead - Tom Waits That's it? That's it? Mahiru's parents didn't plan to have kids, and she was cast out to live on her own as an adult. This is why she can't be in a relationship? So lame. She should look at her relationship with our hero and see the loving mother and father she always wanted. Why the hesitation? She should join his family like right now. Having that kind of distant relationship with your parents would likely make you keep distance between everyone else. Children model their behavior on their parents. Also, we haven't really received the full story; it was rather vague... Episode 8: Amane is in the same class as Mahiru, Itsuki, and Chitose. While it's good that everybody is together, Amane will need to be extra careful not to get too close while at school, seeing that Yuta is also in the same class. An accident nearly happens during cooking class as Yuta was being reckless and Mahiru would have gotten stuff splattered on her had Amane not protected her. Those two continue to develop their relationship, but it's coming to a point where they are falling in love, and are having a much harder time keeping their relationship a secret from the rest of the school. Episode 8: Those two continue to develop their relationship, but it's coming to a point where they are falling in love, and are having a much harder time keeping their relationship a secret from the rest of the school. I have a feeling that when they finally get around to telling everyone they're in a relationship, everyone is going to tell them they already realized that. She's getting bold all of a sudden. Not sure why but I think he might have a shot with her. Maybe I'd be more certain if there were some more clues. Oof. That's a little unsettling. Away from the things of man, my love, away from the things of man. Episode 9: It's Golden Week, and Amane and Mahiru go out on a date. After playing with cute cats at the cat cafe, shopping at the mall, and playing in the arcade, the two run into Yuta. They try to convince Yuta that there's nothing between them and they're just neighbors doing what friends do, but he isn't so convinced. Trouble is certainly brewing there as those two have gotten too close out in public, all while Yuta is making things complicated. Nevertheless, it was cute to see that side of Mahiru on the date, but there's... The situation with Yuta is uncertain and potentially tricky. The narrator emphasizes that they're just roommates, not boyfriend and girlfriend, despite doing all sorts of couple-like activities together. They mention that Umehara brings them daily joy (dopamine). The rest of the post appears to be a series of cryptic messages and humorous asides about using Pikario avatars, which are apparently no longer allowed due to copyright issues. There's also some discussion about a "game" that needs to be unstuck, with various users trying to contribute to the conversation but ultimately failing due to lack of understanding or creative blocks. In the end, it seems that even when ideas do come forth, they're not particularly original and may already be patented. Looking forward to the meeting tomorrow and discussing our strategies, it seems that a new development has arisen. Dypsear, a villainess from Pretty Cure, is trying to steal our patent for her own gain. However, her intentions seem unclear, as she only wants to get close to us before stealing the patent. Fortunately, after getting close, Dypsear takes a liking to us and decides to help instead of hinder. Unfortunately, her clumsiness causes her to be unhelpful at times, but she tries her best going forward. Despite this, our next obstacle is an amusement park date with Dypsear, where we risk injury from swords and potentially even being quilled by a porcupine's needles. However, thanks to her healing magic, we've gained a special power that allows us to turn into a motorcycle. Unfortunately, the effects of these powers are temporary, and Dypsear has left us without contact with her until Porcupine Day, when she invites us to visit her uncle, Uncle Ralph. However, upon meeting up, we find out that the house is locked, and Dypsear isn't responding to our texts. Fortunately, our secret crush answers our texts instead, but their messages are in windings, making it difficult to decipher their intentions. Someone accidentally cast a magic spell that has some unpleasant side effects. The spell causes a person to type randomly and limit their ability to type normally. To avoid this effect, taking 200mg of acetaminophen can help. The author then shifts to discussing the game "Rules" which is played with a group of people. In this game, one person asks a question and another person responds with a question, creating a conversation that can be played among three or more people. The rules of the game include being nice, not attacking others, and not posting back-to-back. The discussion then moves on to reminiscing about the old Crunchyroll forum, where celebrities would sometimes appear and bring free drinks after posts. However, some memories are bittersweet, such as when they brought an empty glass instead of a drink. The conversation also touches on panicking and seeking help, with one person suggesting that someone like Pikario could be a better source of comfort than a group of drunk and rowdy people. Another topic is handsome game beasts, with some people asking if it's possible to find such a character in real life or through media like Beauty and the Beast. Overall, the text seems to be a humorous collection of unrelated thoughts and conversations on various topics. Then, what about my cat who's both stunning and terrifying? I implore you to invoke love, hope, and healing energy! Can I show you a picture of her so you can see her dual nature for yourself? But how can we trust that your intentions are pure, and you're not just trying to exploit her majesty's adorable yet menacing aura? Wouldn't it be easier to look at a photo instead of asking to meet her in person? crypticandSquab Perhaps we should verify your cat's status first by examining a picture. After all, what if anyone who gazes upon her becomes entranced and controlled by her feline powers? Could you please share an image of your kitty with us? But wait, are we discussing the sinister plot to conquer the world through cat domination or something else entirely? crypticandSquab I think it's safe to say that we're onto something diabolical. Why do you suspect cats of being our evil overlords in the first place? Shouldn't you be more cautious, given your own feline companion's presence on your head? OnImageDec 22, 2022 1:58 PM Head cats like head lice, but I digress. crypticandSquab Let's get back to the conversation. Would you want to keep house lice as a pet if they were cat-like creatures? Is there any scenario where you'd tolerate having those pesky critters on your scalp? If so, how do you plan to eradicate them when you notice their presence? Crushing fire to your hair might be a drastic measure, but would it actually work? crypticandSquab Alas, the lice would merely relocate to another area of your body. So, how do you define a rhetorical question, and do they even require an answer? Now, let's put our minds at ease with some light-hearted chatter... until we can play our game again. This time around, we'll have a conversation where each person must start their sentence with the next letter of the alphabet. For instance: Person 1: Amazing how this game is going to be. Person 2: But not everyone will agree on that. Person 3: Can we even trust each other? And so forth. Alphabet conversation game, let's begin! Can't wait to discuss Urolagnia with you all... You seem quite skeptical about something, and I'm not sure if you're being serious or just trying to be cryptic. It's like you're hiding something in plain sight. Xenial gatherings might help ease those suspicions, though. But let's be real, zany tales can go on forever, whereas epics aim for a satisfying conclusion. Am I giving the impression that I'm on drugs? Don't worry about it, I'm not judging. But do you want to indulge in substances or abstain from them altogether? That's the question. Could it be that you're struggling with addiction? Did anyone mention that you've been asking too many questions about substances? Everyone here has tried at least three different substances, right? I can honestly say I never touched drugs, and it's good to know nobody around here is into that scene. But how many of you have neglected caffeine as a drug? For me, the only caffeine kick I get comes from Sprite. January is next month, and I'm glad I have Sprite to keep my blood flowing, along with... well, let's just say I've got everything under control. Looking ahead, January can't come soon enough. Maybe you should invent time travel to make it arrive faster? Not again! Remember what happened the last time someone messed with time? It was a disaster, and we lost all those space colonies. Pity indeed. All that knowledge is gone, but who's thinking about it now? You don't think about our lost space colonies at all? Oh, the humanity. Take it easy, though; it's just some lost colonies. *Sneakily hiding the stolen colonies behind his back* Upstanding citizen OnImage found them for us, yay! Vicious Earthnoids doing as they please with the colonies and lives within them! This is why Char rebelled. X marks the spot when it comes to apologizing together. You know, I'm saddened; does anybody else care about the space colonies? I recently watched several anime episodes across various series. Here's a recap of what I've seen so far: - All Tell Episode 2 was interesting, but I didn't get much out of it. - To Your Eternity Season 2 Episode 1 was good; the story seems to be unfolding well. - The Eminence in Shadow Ep4 and Reincarnated as a Sword Ep4 were quite engaging. - Do It Yourself! Ep3 & 4 and Do It Yourself!! Episode 4 had some entertaining moments. - Love Flops Episode 3 was alright, but not particularly memorable for me. - Management of a Novice Alchemist Episode 4 seemed like an okay episode, with its standard anime fare. - Peter Grill and the Philosopher's Time: Super Extra Episode 3 was enjoyable; it has its quirks, but I enjoy watching it. - Reincarnated as a Sword Episode 4 had some interesting development in the story. - Yowamushi Pedal: Limit Break Episode 3 kept me engaged with its usual blend of sports and action. - Kyoukai no Kanata ep.6 had an unusual episode, which was quite intriguing. I also recently finished watching Lycoris Recoil full season; I couldn't stop watching it once I started. Arknights: Prelude to Dawn Episode 1 caught my eye with its blend of strategy and action. Bibliophile Princess Episode 4 was enjoyable, showcasing the usual charm that this series has. Doomsday with My Dog Episode 35 wrapped up nicely. Legend of Mana -The Teardrop Crystal- Episode 4 had some interesting developments in its story. Mobile Suit Gundam: The Witch from Mercury Episode 4 kept me engaged, and Shine Post Episode 12 (Complete!) was satisfying to watch. And Backflip! ep 6, and 7 were quite entertaining. Bluelock Episode 4 added some excitement to the series. Boku no Hero Academia Episode 118 had its usual blend of action and drama. Chainsaw Man Episode 3 kept me engaged with its dark and suspenseful storyline. My Master Has No Tail Episode 5 wrapped up nicely, adding a touch of humor. Raven of the Inner Palace Episode 5 was alright; it has some potential but wasn't overly memorable for me. Spy x Family Episode 17 had some interesting development in its story. Urusei Yatsura Episode 3 was quite entertaining and added to my enjoyment of the series. Uzaki-chan Wants to Hang Out! Season 2 Episode 5 kept me laughing with its usual blend of comedy and romance. Welcome to Demon School! Iruma-kun Season 3 Episode 4 had some interesting moments, but not particularly memorable for me. Yowamushi Pedal: Limit Break Episode 4 was another enjoyable episode from the series. I've also been keeping up with Bocchi The Rock! Lucifer Episode 4 and Delicious Party Pretty Cure Episode 34. I'm keeping track of various anime shows I've been watching lately, including some simulcasts and dubs, and it's getting overwhelming to list everything. For now, I'll stick with my usual routine. Here's a breakdown: **Simulcast Shows** - Monday: Golden Kamuy ep. 41 - Tuesday: Chainsaw Man ep. 4, Vinland Saga ep. 4, Vinland Saga ep. 13-14 (dub) - Wednesday: The Eminence in Shadow ep. 5 - Thursday: Akiba Meido War ep. 5 **Dubbed Shows** - Monday: Bleach: Thousand-Year Blood War ep. 4 - Tuesday: Mob Psycho 100 III ep. 1 (dub), Vinland Saga ep. 13-14 (dub) - Wednesday: Do It Yourself!! ep. 5, Spy x Family Part ep. 13-14 (dub) - Thursday: My Hero Academia ep. 114-115 (dub) **Other Shows** - Arknights: Prelude to Dawn Episode 2 - Legend of Mana -The Teardrop Crystal- Episode 5 - Made in Abyss: The Golden City of the Scorching Sun Episode 12 - My Master Has No Tail Episode 6 - Peter Grill and the Philosopher's Time Episode 12 (Complete) - Welcome to Demon School! Iruma-kun - S3 E5 - Dubs for various shows, including Lucifer and the Biscuit Hammer, Classroom of the Elite, MKProps, Blue Lock, Bocchi the Rock!, and more. My weekend report: Friday: Reiwa no Di Gi Charat ep. 5, Arknights: Prelude to Dawn ep. 2 Saturday: My Hero Academia ep. 119, I'm the Villainess, So I'm Taming the Final Boss ep. 7 Sunday: To Your Eternity Season 2 ep. 3, Mobile Suit Gundam: The Witch from Mercury ep. 6 Looking forward to sharing my weekend watchlist with you, let's dive into what I binge-watched from November 10th to November 12th, 2022. Liam was a man who died in debt and betrayal in his previous life, but he was reborn into an interstellar empire as its ruler. He plans to take what he wants and live for himself, but things don't go according to plan. Despite his efforts to become a tyrant, Liam's decisions lead to peace and prosperity instead, making him incredibly popular. Liam discovers that he has the ability to "munch" people's pizzas while existing in spirit form. He can put pizza together and even eat it without physical form, but no one else can see or taste it. Liam is determined to get a slice of this non-existent pizza for himself. The concept of the "munching" technique seems absurd, yet it brings people joy. Liam wonders if he needs special permission to complain about cheese abroad. In a world where even small acts of kindness can lead to severe consequences, I find myself increasingly anxious about the state of society. As someone who prides themselves on being an exceptionally kind-hearted individual, this unsettling reality weighs heavily on my mind. On a lighter note, I'd like to graciously bestow upon you my profound humility, as is befitting of someone of my stature. Not that it's necessary, but I thought it would be amusing to indulge in such a gesture nonetheless. Fortunately, the creators of this particular anime adaptation seem to have targeted their efforts at human audiences, rather than attempting to inductinate our cephalopod counterparts. A blessing, indeed, as they provide subtitles for those who might not speak Octopus fluently. Regrettably, however, these subtitles often deviate from standard grammatical norms, rendering the experience somewhat awkward when sharing with friends. I suppose that's a minor price to pay for the privilege of enjoying such a captivating series. As it happens, I'm blessed (or cursed) with an abundance of wealth, which has led some people to seek me out as a source of comfort and guidance. Fortunately, research has shown that wealth can indeed contribute to overall happiness, although I wouldn't go so far as to say it's the sole determining factor. I must admit that my initial attempts at befriending Canadians were met with limited success, largely due to their geographical distance. Nevertheless, Australians have proven themselves to be a more accessible and endearing alternative. Alas, my propensity for turning into a green jelly-like creature upon exposure to certain stimuli still persists, rendering it rather difficult for me to form meaningful connections with others. Fortunately, I've been transported to a realm where individuals with similar afflictions gather to celebrate their uniqueness. There, I found myself at the center of an intriguing competition involving spoons - yes, you read that correctly, spoons. In the end, despite initial reservations and the presence of a certain enigmatic figure (who shall remain nameless but has a penchant for space travel), I managed to navigate this peculiar situation with relative ease. The writer is discussing a song called "Sonne" by Rammstein, but it appears they've gotten the title and musician mixed up. They mention that someone will always remember them and look for them, which is a silver lining to being rejected or dumped. This means that even if their girlfriend moves on, there's still a chance they'll be remembered fondly. The rest of the text consists of a list of anime episodes with release dates between March 10-18, 2025. The episodes are from various shows, including Shangri-La Frontier, Zenshuu, and Witchy Precure!. The schedule starts on Tuesday, March 11, with a few episodes from various shows, including Zoku Sayonara Zetsubo-Sensei, Bogus Skill (Fruitmaster), and Trigun Stampede. The following days will feature different shows, such as Re:Zero -Starting Life in Another World, Magic Maker: How to Make Magic in Another World, Headhunted to Another World: From Salaryman to Big Four, and more. The schedule also includes some completed episodes and a few episodes that are still ongoing or have been marked as "dub" (dubbed versions). Some shows will be aired on specific days of the week, while others will be aired on Saturday and Sunday. Overall, the text seems to be a list of anime marathon sessions with various episode linesups. Here's a summary of my anime watching from March 20th to 25th: I watched episode 3-5 of "The Daily Life of a Middle-Aged Online Shopper in Another World", episode 11 of "Dr. Stone: Science Future", and other episodes of various shows including "Trillion Game", "Rurouni Kenshin", "Chihayafuru 3", and more. On Friday, I watched episode 11 of "Welcome to Japan, Ms. Eit!", episode 35 of "The Apothecary Diaries", and other episodes. On Saturday, I watched episode 11 of "Sakamoto Days" and episode 24 of "Solo Leveling". On Sunday, I watched episode 49 of "Shangri-La Frontier" and other episodes. I also finished watching several shows including "Magical Girl Lyrical Nanoha: Reflection", "Tokyo Revengers: Tenjiku Arc", and "Chihayafuru 3". Here's a summary of my anime watching from last weekend: On Friday, I watched episode 11 of "Welcome to Japan, Ms. Eit!", episode 35 of "The Apothecary Diaries", and other episodes. On Saturday, I watched episode 11 of "Sakamoto Days" and episode 24 of "Solo Leveling". On Sunday, I watched episode 49 of "Shangri-La Frontier" and other episodes. I also finished watching several shows including "Magical Girl Lyrical Nanoha: Reflection", "Tokyo Revengers: Tenjiku Arc", and "Chihayafuru 3". Synopsis of "Ore wa Seikan Kokka no Akutoku Ryoushu": In his last life, Liam lived as a moral, responsible person...but died deep in debt and betrayed by his wife. Reborn into the ruling family of a vast interstellar empire, Liam knows that his life is divided between the downtrodden and the ones who do the stomping, so this time he's going to take what he wants and live for himself. But somehow, things refuse to work out that way. Despite doing his best to become a tyrant, Liam's decisions lead to nothing but peace and prosperity for the empire under his rule. **Rising in Popularity!** (Courtesy of Seven Seas Entertainment)**Series Details** **Type:** **Television Series ** **Episode Count:** **To Be Announced ** **Status:** **Upcoming, Airing Soon ** **Airing Schedule:** ** April 6, 2025 - TBD, Sundays at 02:00 JST ** **Preview Date:** ** March 25, 2025 ** **Production Team:** ** Pony Canyon, GREE Entertainment, Procen Studio ** **Licensing Partners:** ** Currently None ** **Animation Studio:** ** Quad ** **Source Material:** ** Light Novel ** **Genres:** ** Action, Science Fiction ** **Themes:** ** Harem, Mecha, Military, Space Exploration ** **Episode Length:** ** 22 Minutes ** **Payment Currency (for eBook):** ** Euros (€ EUR) ** **Manga/eBook Insight** ** **Note:** ** This offering is a digital eBook, not a printed book. Amane resides in a solo apartment, with the school's most stunning student, Mahiru, living right next door. Their interactions have been scarce—until Amane assists her on a rainy day by lending his umbrella. In return, Mahiru proposes helping out around Amane's apartment, marking the beginning of a blossoming relationship as they draw closer together...

The angel next door spoils me rotten volume 9. The angel next door spoils me rotten season 2 release date. The angel next door spoils me rotten season 2 episode 1. The angel next door spoils me rotten light novel. The angel next door spoils me rotten season 2 manga. The angel next door spoils me rotten manga after anime. The angel next door spoils me rotten season 2 trailer. The angel next door spoils me rotten episode 1 in hindi dubbed. The angel next door spoils me rotten s2 release date. The angel next door spoils me rotten anime. The angel next door spoils me rotten in hindi telegram. The angel next door spoils me rotten wiki. The angel next door spoils me rotten season 2. The angel next door spoils me rotten season 2 release date in india.