From job applications to legal papers, we still have to fax something for all sorts of different things. If you need to send a fax from your phone, I would only sign up for an online fax service like RingCentral Fax so you can fax on the go with their mobile app. After the 30-day free trial, RingCentral Fax is only $17.99/mo. If you wish to cancel, Ringcentral also provides a 30-day money-back guarantee without risk. If you are looking for a physical location to send a fax, where exactly is a fax service near you? Today, we are answering all your questions about where you can send a fax. UPS and FedEx don't just send physical packages - they can also send faxes for you. UPS and FedEx locations are located all over the world. All UPS and FedEx locations have a fax for customers. Some of the benefits of sending a fax with FedEx include: Sending and receiving local, national and international faxes A free fax coverage card is provided for you Get a printed confirmation for your records Receive faxes at a nearby FedEx office and a team member will hold your fax until you are able to You can find out more about FedEx's fax services here: UPS, Kinko and other delivery services offer benefits similar to those listed above. If you're sending a fax near you from one of these services, you can expect to pay between $1 and $2 per fax page. FedEx, for example, typically charges $1.50 for the first page and $1 for each subsequent page for sending/receiving local faxes. If you're faxing to a long distance number, it costs $2 for the first page and $1.50 per page later. Fax: Hotels, Hostels and Representative Offices Even if you have a fax machine at home, you may need to access a fax machine when traveling to a foreign country or city. Most hotels, hostels and other accommodations have anticipated this requirement and are able to provide electronic fax services. If your hotel has an office center, then it probably has a fax machine. In some hotels, the local and international fax is complimentary. Others charge a small fee. Luxor hotel in Las Vegas, to give a random example, does not charge guests to receive faxes from anywhere in the world. However, you will be charged $6 for the first page of a local fax ($1 for each additional page) and $10 for the first page of an international fax ($2 for each additional page). Most hotels are cheaper. You are less likely to find a fax machine in a hostel, but some hostels have one on site. At the very least, staff should be able to direct to a location where you can find a fax machine. Can't you get a fax machine at your hotel or hostel? Ask for a local travel agent or travel office. These places are safe bets for fax machines. Where? Where?I'm going to fax something: local office supplies stores if you're in a smaller town and need a fax, then you might not find a large local hotel or a delivery service like FedEx and UPS. What's your next best option? Well, many small towns have office supplies shops or even municipal office spaces. The Depot office and similar stores often let customers send and receive faxes, for example. Call the double check in advance. Of course, if that fails, and you're really desperate, then you can just call the local businesses to see if you can pay them to send a fax.
